Lab Activities

Specialization

Directions:

Students will briefly research and compare the advantages and disadvantages of specialization and fill out the chart provided based on reliable sources. Lead a class discussion following this Activity.

Trading Game

Directions:

Students will explore the idea of free trading by exchanging items with each other, based on how they value their own items. After the Activity, students will discuss their actions while trading. See the Trading Game Teacher Instruction Sheet for more information.

Global Economies

Directions:

Students will compare four countries: America, China, Germany and another country of their choosing. Students will research various economic factors of each country including public debt, currency and the type of economic integration each is involved in.

Fair Trade

Directions:

Students will briefly research domestic and international fair trade and identify benefits of each. Using their findings, students will write a paragraph for domestic fair trade and a paragraph for international fair trade including the benefits of each and conclude by writing a paragraph and describing why they would choose one over the other. Remind students to attach a citation sheet listing all sources used. Lead a class discussion so students can share their findings with the class.

International Business Law

Directions:

Working in groups, students will consider what they have learned from the presentation and discuss the following: reasoning behind the regulation of global business behavior, Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and its complications as well as the role of international law in the conduct of global business. Groups should write down their ideas and be prepared to discuss with the class.

Career Connections

Using the Career Connections Activity, allow students to explore the various careers associated with this lesson. See the Activity for more details. If student licenses have been purchased: Students will select the interviews to watch based on your directions. If only a teacher license is purchased: Show students all the career interviews and instruct them to only complete the interview form for the required number of interviews.

Projects

How a Global Business Runs

Directions:

Students will choose a company from the United States or another country to conduct research over. Students should notify you prior to conducting additional research, so no two students select the same company. Using the Internet, library or any other available resources, student should locate the following information: location of the company's home base, when the company was created, who created the company, who is in charge now, products the company makes, where the company sells its products, where the company creates its products, pictures of the company and products, how it is a global company and global linkages the company has. Using the information, students should prepare a 10 to 15 slide Microsoft® PowerPoint® presentation based upon their research. Remind students to include a citation slide listing all sources used. Students should be prepared to present their Project to the class and participate in a group discussion afterwards.

Going Global

Directions:

Working in groups of two or three, students should imagine they have a company going global and think about the factors provided and discuss how each will affect their business. Groups should begin their research by using web pages, articles and books as resources. While researching, students should be sure to include what business decisions may be affected by each of the following factors: copyrights, trademarks, intellectual property rights, advertising media, geography, time zones, work days, resources and natural harbors. Groups should prepare a Microsoft® PowerPoint® presentation based upon their research. The last slide of the presentation should include all resources used. Groups should Share their findings with the class.

Going Abroad

Directions:

Students will create a pamphlet a young American may read when preparing to live, work or study abroad. They will include jobs one may want to seek abroad, safety concerns and other types of information one would wish to know before going abroad. Students will share their pamphlets with the class when finished.
