Directions:

1. Get in groups of three to five.
2. Within your group, choose one of the four styles of leadership: authoritarian, abdicratic, participative or laissez faire. Make sure each of these styles are represented by at least one group.
3. Write a script showing a scenario where your chosen style of leadership can be used in a group setting.
4. Either videotape the scene or act it out for the class.
5. Compare the situations and each style's effectiveness as it is being presented.
